To Chemistry Teachers in Middle Western Liberal Arts Colleges:

One of the panel discussions at the forthcoming meeting of the Mid-Western Conference of Liberal Arts College Chemistry Teachers will deal with Research in the Liberal Arts College. It has been shown that one of the drawbacks to an expansion of research in the colleges has been the need for some financial support, however modest the amount.

We need good data on the extent of current financing of research in the Chemistry departments of the colleges of the Middle West. I hope you will be willing to fill out the enclosed card and return it quickly so that some kind of a true picture may be drawn of the nature and amount of the present support. Please return the card even though you are not planning to attend the meeting in Appleton on October 16 and 17. The results will be summarized without identification of individuals or institutions. Card will be destroyed after collection of data.

Sincerely,

Harry F. Lewis
