Dear Professor Oelke:

I have delayed acknowledging your letter of September 5 until I could send you the executed contracts of the Physical Chemistry Manual, both the Reference Section and the Experiments Section. These contracts are enclosed for your files. You will find two executed file copies of the contract for the Experiments Section; two executed file copies of the contract for the Reference Section. We, of course, are holding the originals in our contract safe. If you need additional copies of these contracts, we can supply them in Xeroxed copy form.

We are delighted that the publication of these volumes are now a matter of formal agreement between us.

The publication rights and the copyright of the Mack and France book resides with this company. As I indicated earlier, permission for the use of any of the experiments that appear in this book will be granted to you and the Editorial Board by this company without charge. We may consider inserting a suitable statement in the Preface which might acknowledge the source of some experiments taken from Mack and France.

By all means, go ahead and use what is necessary from the Mack and France book.

Recently Mr. Malcolm M. MacDonald has joined our editorial staff and will be primarily interested in the Chemistry field. He and I will be happy to work with you and the Editorial Board in formulating our publication plans for the laboratory manual and discussing with you the necessary details that will insure quality publication.

Please do not hesitate to call upon me any time for help. Also, whenever you feel that a personal conference will help speed along the project and solve problems more efficiently, again do not hesitate to suggest one.

Professor William C. Oelke
