Call for Proposals

Monmouth College Faculty Development Course Release

The Office of Academic Affairs invites faculty proposals for a one-course release to pursue scholarly activity to take place during the 2019-2020 academic year.

For the purposes of this grant, and consistent with our sabbatical language, “scholarly activity” may take any of four forms:

- Professional development
- Scholarly research
- Instructional development
- New course development

Please submit to the Academic Affairs Office, Lori Ferguson, laferguson@monmouthcollege.edu a two-page proposal detailing the intended project and connections to present work. For those selected, we will ask that you submit an abstract of up to one paragraph for dissemination to the wider community. As with sabbaticals, FIDC will pass initial review and make recommendations to the Interim Vice President of Academic Affairs.

The College is intent on providing an environment which fosters success during the release time. Thus, in addition to the teaching reduction, successful applicants may be exempted from all committee assignments for the academic year during which they carry out their project, should they choose to do so.

Each faculty member may apply once each review cycle. In the interest of providing the greatest benefit to the greatest number of faculty, once candidates are successful in their applications, they may not apply again for two review cycles.
